The murder of George Floyd is a tragic outcome of when racism and anti-blackness exists in our institutions. Radical change is necessary to reform and rebuild trust between community and law enforcement.

CISC stands with the African American community who are working to achieve fundamental and systemic change to safeguard Black lives. We must prevent another tragedy from occurring by joining the groundswell of voices protesting for change.

We are at another pivotal crossroads. The African American community led Civil Rights movements in the past that paved the way for civil liberties we enjoy today. Like the people before us, we must do our part to forge a path toward justice and equality for all. CISC urges action, more than you ever have before, for social justice through dialogue, engagement, and advocacy.
